PLENARY SPEAKER Gunnar Knapp

Economics, Politics and the Future of Aquaculture

Gunnar Knapp is a Professor of Economics at the University of Alaska Anchorage Institute of Social and Economic Research, where he has been engaged in research on Alaska resource management and markets since receiving his Ph.D. in Economics from Yale University in 1981.

Since 1991, much of Dr. Knapp's research has focused on markets for Alaska seafood-particularly salmon – and how they have been affected by growth in aquaculture and other changes occurring in the global seafood industry. He has also studied how the Alaska seafood industry has responded to changing markets, and a wide range of policy issues related to the management of wild fisheries and the development of aquaculture.

Together with Professors Cathy Roheim and Jim Anderson of the University of Rhode Island, Dr. Knapp wrote the report "The Great Salmon Run: Competition Between Wild and Farmed Salmon," which was published in February 2007 by TRAFFIC North America (www.traffic.org).
